Storytelling is the world's oldest art form, and it plays an integral role in guests' experiences at all Grand Mercure Hotels & Resorts. At each of our iconic locations, our staff thoughtfully create signature services that illuminate local culture and honoured traditions. They become storytellers in the process. Each signature – whether it's a traditional dining experience, a locally inspired greeting or a flourish of regional décor – comes from careful research and a genuine passion for local culture.

The stories and anecdotes our staff tell transform each Grand Mercure into an eloquently described scene, bringing people and places together.

The heart of the cocktail

Mixing rum with cane sugar, lime juice and crushed mint leaves brings back childhood memories of my family road trips. Vast sugar cane plantations stretched from either side of the road. The rum used in our signature mojito has much less travelling to do. In fact, the distillery's a mere 30 minutes' drive from the resort.

A recipe from home

Some of the most rewarding aspects of being a chef happen outside of the kitchen. I love visiting the local market, trading jokes with vendors and learning which fishermen consistently have the freshest seafood. But nothing compares with the honour of cooking with local families and learning their secrets for creating the perfect yellow curry. I've even added a few personal touches of my own.
